COMMENT OF THE DAY

Election Outlook

THE world awaits with deep interest the outcome of the American presidential election which takes place tomorrow. If the campaign has been somewhat raucous, it has also shown that both Governor Stevenson and General Eisenhower are skilful debaters, and neither has allowed himself to be detracted into campaigning on side issues. Possibly the most striking feature of their appeals to the electorate has been the emphasis placed on international affairs. The Korean war has been made a major issue, while both candidates have striven to convince the people that there will be no deviation from the policy of combatting international Communism through collective action with the rest of the democracies, irrespective of who becomes the next President. The conviction has been created outside of America that either Eisenhower or Stevenson as President would work for the security of free nations and would strive to maintain an economy consistent with the burden of defence. The fact that so many thousands of American soldiers are still involved in fighting in Korea makes the question of an end to the war a major consideration for the electors. Mr Stevenson has been handicapped during the campaign by the fact that he can hold out no assurance of any early settlement and General Eisenhower may well have won some wavering support to his side by his expressed determination to go to Korea, if he is elected President, to do something personally to hasten an armistice.

NEVERTHELESS, the election will not be decided on the issue. Personality appeal is an important, though not easily assessable factor. General Eisenhower's widespread popularity as a brilliantly successful militarist and as the man who has done most to give practical reality to the objectives of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation has probably not suffered one iota in consequence of the election campaign. On the other hand, Mr Stevenson has had to win his way from virtual national obscurity to obtain some recognition of his qualities as a potential President. From the point of view of personal popularity, General Eisenhower undoubtedly continues to hold an advantage over his Democratic opponent. For the Republicans to win, however, it remains necessary for them successfully to woo a percentage of the Democratic vote. If the Democrats poll their maximum strength it appears unlikely that a Republican candidate can expect to occupy the White House, and the knowledge that the trade unions have, for the first time, officially endorsed the Democrats' nominee, suggests that Mr Stevenson will obtain a solid poll. Moreover, the election campaign has not revealed any deep signs of the country urgently seeking a change in administration. When finally the electors go to the polls tomorrow the odds will probably be slightly in favour of a Democrat being returned as President, and the Democratic Party retaining control in Congress.

New Attempt To Find Compromise Peace Solution DESIGNED TO BRING U.S. AND RUSSIA TOGETHER

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

New York, Nov. 2.

Undercover attempts are being made tonight in the United Nations to bring the United States and Russia together for a peace in Korea. The peacemakers belong to Asian and Arab States and are led by Dr L. N. Palar, of Indonesia.

They are trying to draw up a compromise peace resolution to merge both the free world's and the Communist resolutions for a settlement.

- It would include:—
1. The West's demand for no forcible return of war prisoners to the other side;
 2. Russia's demand for a new United Nations Commission — with Russia sitting on it — to settle the war.

Terrorists Active In Tunisia

Tunis, Nov. 2.

One man was dead and four persons were in hospital today as a result of spasmodic outbreaks of terrorist activity.

The killing took place at Sousse in an atmosphere of the Arab nights and the Sousse district.

Two white-robed Arabs snatched a man from the street, and another man was killed. The man who was killed was a Frenchman, and the other man was a Tunisian.

Another bomb exploded in the street, and a man was killed. The man who was killed was a Frenchman, and the other man was a Tunisian.

Jap Mission Coming To HK

Bombay, Nov. 3.

A Japanese industrial mission is to visit Hongkong, India and other territories in Southeast Asia to seek overseas markets for its industries, it is announced here.

The visitors are expected to explore in particular possible outlets for its pottery, bicycle, textile, clock and sewing machine industries.

The Japanese will tour—besides Hongkong and India—Pakistan, Ceylon, Thailand and Malaya before returning home at the year's end. They will have their Government's blessing.—Reuters.

HE DISCOVERED LIONS DO BITE

Rouen, Nov. 2.

A policeman had his right hand bitten off by a lion today when he tried to prove to his daughter that lions do not bite.

The policeman was visiting a menagerie at the Saint-Romain fair. He put his hand inside the lion's cage while telling his daughter lions are "nice little animals". The lion turned around and bit off the man's hand.—France-Press.

The attempts are based on the peacemakers' hope that Moscow has now really decided that Soviet interests will be served by calling off the war.

They want the resolution to be a "face saver" for both sides.

Great problem is the wording. They would like to say that prisoners of war will not be forced at bayonet point to return to the Communists—and execution squads or labour camps in Siberia—without seeming to say so.

Perhaps the commission could go to Korea and handle the delicate job of sorting out the prisoners.

The resolution is not expected to appear before the United States' presidential election day.

MEXICAN PROPOSAL

United Nations, Nov. 2. Mexico has submitted a formal proposal to the United Nations that Korean war prisoners be released to return home.

The proposal is not expected to appear before the United States' presidential election day.

The Mexican move came as Indonesia pressed still another Korean peace effort designed to "muddy" the American and Russian Korean resolutions already before the Assembly's Main Political Committee.

The Committee will resume the Korean debate on Monday with varying peace moves slated to be fervently discussed as soon as the American election is over.

The Soviet Foreign Minister, Mr. Andrei Vyshinsky, may take the floor and give a new indication of Russia's receptivity to compromise moves.

Indonesia's move has not yet been translated into formal resolution. It appeared to hold much greater promise of achieving a settlement than the new Mexican proposal.

The Indonesian proposal is to give the Reds a way to save face while still insuring that unwilling prisoners will not have to return to the Communist rule. The initiative taken by the Indonesian delegate, L. N. Palar, was generally welcomed by the UN diplomats.

The Mexican resolution embodying ideas that drew considerable interest when it was first put forward last month, provides:

1. As soon as a cease-fire is effected, all prisoners willing to go home would be promptly exchanged.

2. The UN would endorse the principle that no prisoners must be returned by force.

3. Prisoners unwilling to go home would be resettled in countries willing to take them.—United Press.

NEWSMEN'S VIEWS

Tokyo, Nov. 2.

A group of 15 correspondents covering the Korean war cabled US Presidential candidates Dwight D. Eisenhower and Adlai E. Stevenson today it would be "extremely unwise" to consider withdrawing American troops from the Korean battlefield.

The text of the message reads: "As individual correspondents covering the Korean war we have noted the increasing importance of the war as an issue in the present political campaign and feel that the following facts should be made clear to the American public. We have reported these facts before through our own news media, but think it necessary in the interest of further clarification of this issue to restate them direct to you:

"One: It has been suggested that Americans be pulled out of the front lines in Korea leaving the 'battle here a war of Asian versus Asian.' ROK troops have improved tremendously under American training and with American equipment, and in recent engagements have more than proved their worth. However, as war correspondents on the scene we have noted limitations which must be taken into account in any discussion concerning Korea. South Koreans can fight magnificently as individuals and in small units, but even with American advisers they lack the experience, leadership and planning ability on all levels—from sergeants up to make a co-ordinated effort. It would be extremely unwise to count on pulling back American and other experienced UN troops who now are scattered along the front as firm anchors between ROK units. General Van Fleet himself has told us repeatedly that as long as the Chinese are in the war the South Koreans are incapable of manning the front lines alone.

"TWO: South Korea, with a population of some 20,000,000, is militarily incapable of manning a 155-mile front line against a mainland population of some 400,000,000 who have an army in Korea now of over 1,000,000 and the backing of Russian planes, equipment, technicians and probably even pilots.

"THREE: The front line itself is only part of this war. Since it is impossible to foresee the day when the ROKs can be trained to take over the intricate jobs, expensive bombers and heavy battle ships which hourly play their direct part in hitting the enemy, we can never say as has suggested, 'There is nobody here but us Asians.'

"FOUR: Working in Asia we are doubly conscious of the serious, anti-American propaganda which would surely result if we pulled back of the lines and let someone else take all the heavy blows. We have been tremendously impressed by the contributions of other UN troops who are also fighting here alongside us. Should we pull back now from the line of fire it might mean the unravelling of a great United Nations army and the dismantling of a force involving everyone from Colombians and Filipinos to Belgians, French, Greek, Thais, Ethiopians, and many others who are willing to fight for their freedom.

Artificial Heart

Alleged "Passion" Murder

TRIAL DEFENCE DISCLOSED

Rheims, Nov. 2.

The widow of a junior Government Minister will plead that she killed her husband because of his affair with a millionaire's young wife, her attorney disclosed today.

The disclosure came before the opening on Wednesday of France's most publicised murder trial since the war.

Madame Yvonne Chevallier, 41, has been charged with the "unpremeditated" murder of Pierre Chevallier in their home at Orleans on August 12, 1951. The maximum sentence is 20 years at hard labour.

Mr Chevallier, handsome 42-year-old Mayor of Orleans, had been named a Junior Minister in Premier Rene Flandre's Cabinet only the day before he was found with five bullets in his body.

The widow's attorney said she will plead that the shooting was "a crime of passion" because of her jealousy over Mr Chevallier's affair with a 24-year-old millionaire's wife identified only as Jeanette.

If the court accepts her plea, she may receive only a suspended sentence and walk out free. French courts are lenient about jealousy slayings.

FOUND LETTER

Madame Chevallier told police she learned about the "other woman" from a letter found in her husband's pocket.

The widow reconstructed the murder scene to police as follows: Determined to kill herself, she bought a revolver. When her husband returned from Paris with his new appointment, she charged him with infidelity. He admitted it, laughed and told her she and she would get divorces and marry.

Madame Chevallier urged him on her knees not to leave her. He was changing his clothes at the time and stood laughing in his underwear. She said she would kill herself and he replied: "Wait, till I have gone then."

The concierge of the Chevallier home said she heard four shots and screams from the Chevallier's son Mathieu, 12.

Madame Chevallier rushed downstairs and asked the concierge to look after Mathieu and then swept upstairs again, the concierge said.

A moment later, she said, she heard a fifth shot. Madame Chevallier said she intended the fifth bullet for her husband's dead body. Police questioned whether the body was dead and whether she feared her husband might live to tell a different story.—Reuters.

Tito Opens Party Congress

ATTACK AGAINST STALIN LIKELY

London, Nov. 2.

Marshal Tito today opened the Sixth Congress of the Communist Party of Yugoslavia. Many observers expect he will sound a call to world left-wing groups to rally in a new Marxist alignment in opposition to the Communist parties controlled by Stalin.

The ruler of the anti-Stalin Yugoslav Communist State delivers his report to the congress sometime on Monday. The survey of the international situation between the Fifth and Sixth Yugoslav party congress—four years and three months—is said to run to 45,000 words.

Since the last congress, the split between Tito and Stalin's Russia has widened. Belgrade radio today said Marshal Tito was greeted by warm and hearty applause from the 2,000 delegates representing 779,382 party members. In 1948 the party membership totalled 448,175.

The congress is being held in a hall of the new part of the Zagreb Fair especially adapted for the occasion and is being covered by 237 foreign correspondents as well as 70 Yugoslav journalists.

After singing the "International" Tito proposed election of a working group of 33 members which was adopted unanimously.—Associated Press.

ARMY READY

Colonel General Koca Popovic, Chief of the Yugoslav General Staff, told the delegates the Yugoslav army stood firm in the general front of peace. He said it would never attack anyone and would never serve as "the tool of anyone's enslaving aims."

The army, he continued, had proved itself especially capable of decisively resisting aggressors "without any regard to the latter's numerical and material superiority."

He said the Soviet Union's "aggressive policy toward Yugoslavia" had suffered complete defeat but the latest danger of aggression still existed.

"For this reason," he continued, "the Yugoslav people are undertaking everything to strengthen their army even more and intensify connections with freedom loving countries people's groups and individuals who are for peace and resolved to resist aggression."

Recounting the struggle against pressure by Russia and the Soviet satellites, he said: "We have no illusions that the danger is over and that we are continuing to strengthen our defensive ability."

"Our army will remain on the path of peace. It will never attack anyone. It will defend the right of our people for freedom and socialist development. Thanks to our people, our party and Marshal Tito, we are today strong and better able to defend ourselves than ever before."

General Popovic furnished a few hitherto undisclosed figures on Yugoslavia's military strength. He said more than a million draftees have been called up for training (out of a population of about 16,500,000). In addition, he said, 240,000 reserves have been called back for refresher training during that period. Among them 12,000 new officers and 50,000 reserve officers—a fighting force which he said stands ready for action.

At the opening session Marshal Tito wore a broad and confident smile along with a smart double breasted navy blue suit. The congress meetings are being held in a big barn-like auditorium dressed up with Communist red flags.—Associated Press.

5 Children Perish In Fire

Pineckey, Mich., Nov. 2.

The five young children of Mr and Mrs William Rickard of nearby Lakeland perished in their blazing home on Saturday night.

The parents were at a tavern to get beer to bring home. State Police said Rickard, 31, and his wife, Dorothy, 29, watched television with their children at home until 11 p.m., and then put the children to bed and made a trip to a nearby tavern.

The parents returned to find their frame cottage blazing fiercely. The victims were Rose, seven months; Dorothy, two, Paul, four; Edward, six, and Marie, seven.

The parents, suffering from shock, were placed under a doctor's care at Brighton, Michigan.

The Fire Marshal's office said the blaze apparently started from an overheated coal stove pipe that went through the ceiling.—Associated Press.

Lyttelton Finding Out The Facts

Statement On The Kenya Situation

Nakuru, Kenya Nov. 2.

The British Colonial Secretary, Mr Oliver Lyttelton, on a fact-finding tour of Kenya, said here tonight that it was "quite wrong" to link the Mau Mau secret society directly to economic causes.

Mau Mau was anti-European and anti-Christian on quite a different model, he told correspondents. It had "gone very deep" and was stimulating racial hatred.

Mr Lyttelton said that after five days in Kenya — two of them on tour — he had gained the general impression that "confidence among law abiding Africans has noticeably improved in Kenya since the declaration of an emergency."

Mr Lyttelton said he particularly wanted to correct the impression that there had been a large-scale exodus of Africans to the Aberdare mountains. There had been nothing in the nature of wholesale emigration, though there had been a certain amount of movement to the mountains.

COURAGEOUS NATIVES

Mr Lyttelton paid warm tribute to the European and Asian populations which, he declared, in the face of very great provocations, had behaved with steadiness.

He also paid tribute to African chiefs and leaders and other local Africans who had shown great courage in the face of threats to their lives.

Mr Lyttelton said, in answer to a question, that certain features of the Mau Mau organisation followed "a pattern which is painfully familiar in many other parts of the world."

He disagreed that there was any similarity between the disturbances here and in Malaya.

Replying to other questions the Minister said he was quite satisfied that members of the Kenya African Union who had been detained under the emergency regulations had had "a great deal to do with the unrest in Kenya."—Reuters.

Naguib To Discipline Egypt's Trouble-Making Students

Cairo, Nov. 2. University and school strikes and "classroom politics" have been banned under Egypt's new regime.

On the eve of the new academic year, Premier-General Mohamed Naguib stated that he will have none of that "student nonsense" while his Government is busy implementing vital political, economic, agrarian and social reforms.

Egypt must retrieve the "lost generation" of students which the nation has suffered through frequent strikes and closure of universities and schools in recent years, he declared.

General Naguib warned students that "disorders will be vigorously repressed" and "drastic action taken" against those who disrupt the educational life of the country.

As thousands of "go-cods" assembled in the quadrangle of Cairo's modern Fayoum Awal University, on the west bank of the River Nile, and youthful white-turbaned student-soldiers gathered in the courtyard of the 1,000-year-old Al Azhar mosque-university, they were told:

1. Students are forbidden to join any political organisation or to take part in any political activity, the penalties for infringement of this law being a fine of from $20 to $50 and imprisonment up to six months.

2. Students are forbidden to hold meetings or to stage demonstrations.

3. Students are forbidden to use stones, sticks and other such missiles in clashes with the police.

4. The burning of lamp-posts and uprooting of trees was the familiar pattern of student riots then.

5. Students are forbidden to use fire-arms and home-made bombs.

During one student strike, the Cairo City Police Commander, General Selim Zaki, was killed by a hand-grenade in one of the capital's main thoroughfares.

Popular uproar against the British, French, Zionists and Americans conveniently drowned the first rumblings of general discontent against widespread corruption, disease and misery at home.

But last year, when school strikes were of particularly frequent occurrence, the first Farouk slogans were heard. Students clamoured for the end of pasha rule and for social justice for all.

Universities and schools were closed for the best part of the year.

Now, with King Farouk gone and pasha rule ended, Egyptian students will have to concentrate on their studies and make up for the lost years.

"Anybody who strikes, we'll beat him up," said one student.

"BEAT HIM UP"

DREADED INFLUENCE

For the last 30 years students in Egypt have been regarded as the most disturbing single factor in Egyptian politics.

Their influence on the political life of this country persisted, if it did not increase.

Disturbances and disorders for which students, and even schoolboys, were responsible has led to the downfall of Governments and the creation of new ones.

Majority and minority governments alike dreaded the reopening of schools.

Egyptian students could be relied upon to concern themselves with any burning issue of the day, whether of domestic or foreign concern. Extremist agents lured them into political agitation against the British "occupation," French imperialism in North Africa and the Levant, Zionism and American policy.

BELGIAN FINANCIER'S MISSION

Tehran, Nov. 2. M. Camille Gutt, Chairman of the International Monetary Fund and a former Belgian Finance Minister, arrived in Tehran today with five assistants.

He will stay a month in Tehran to investigate Persia's economic situation and will report to the Persian Prime Minister Dr. Mohammad Mossadegh.

M. Gutt left Tehran early last month after a stay of one week here.

(M. Gutt with M. J. Lefebvre, Secretary-General to the Belgian Finance Ministry, left Brussels by air yesterday on a United Nations-sponsored mission to Persia.)

M. Gutt recently returned from Persia where he had exploratory talks with Dr. Mossadegh on the reform of Persia's Finance and Economics Ministry.

(Dr. Mossadegh applied to the United Nations Technical Assistance Bureau some weeks ago for a top financial expert to be sent to Tehran.)—Reuter.

New York, Nov. 2. Advisers of both the Democratic and Republican Congressional campaign committees today expressed confidence of victory in Tuesday's fight for control of the House of Representatives.

Both sides insisted that barring a landslide they would win the House regardless of which party took the Presidency. In the past, the party which has won the Presidency has also usually won the House.

The Democrat spokesman said: "Barring an Eisenhower landslide, we will keep control of the House."

"We have 205 certain seats and will win from half to two-thirds of about 73 doubtful districts."

"That would leave the Republicans with fewer than 200 of the 432 seats to be filled in the House."

Maine has already elected three Republican representatives.

BLUEBLOODS BATTLE

Republican Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, who helped Mr. Eisenhower to win the Republican presidential nomination, is in danger of losing his own Senate seat in Tuesday's elections.

In what has been called "the battle of the Boston bluebloods," the Senator is said to be losing ground to his Democratic opponent, Mr. John Kennedy, a member of the House of Representatives and son of the former Ambassador to Britain, Mr. Joseph Kennedy.

Both men are members of wealthy Boston families long prominent in Massachusetts political life.

The betting odds today are 10 to 1 in favour of Mr. Kennedy, who a few months ago was given only a slight chance of defeating the nationally-known Senator.

He campaigned fiercely in his State while Senator Lodge was away fighting Mr. Eisenhower's battle for the nomination.

The view of most political authorities is that Senator Lodge may lose his seat unless Mr. Eisenhower can help him by winning the more Democratic State for the Republican ticket.

THE KEY

But latest reports suggest that the Democratic candidate for the presidency, Mr. Adlai Stevenson, has been strongly improving his chances of keeping Massachusetts in the Democratic camp, thus increasing Mr. Kennedy's chances of unseating Senator Lodge.

Mr. Kennedy, a member of Boston's best-known Irish Catholic family, has a strong following in the State's Irish stock voters, the Italian and Jewish blocs and the labour unions.

Senator Lodge is assured of the "up-State old line Yankee" vote, which is traditionally Republican. He is now campaigning vigorously among the racial groups.

The Irish Catholic is regarded as the key to the campaign that many of these strongly anti-Communist voters have been sufficiently impressed by the Republican charges of Communist infiltration into the Democratic administration to switch to the Republican ticket this year.—Reuter.

Gallant Attempts A Failure

Fierce Fighting On Korean Front

Tokyo, Nov. 3. South Korean infantrymen failed in three gallant attempts to drive the clinging Chinese Communists from the shell-torn crest of Triangle Hill on Sunday while retreating from nearby Jane Russell Hill before chopping up the Red attack. Republic of Korea troops from a fresh infantry unit each time crawled to within yards of the goal on the peak of Triangle Hill only to be driven down the steep 40-degree slope by withering enemy fire and deadly bouncing hand grenades.

Fighting on the two central front peaks north of Kumhwa slackened at nightfall with ROK infantrymen holding only Sandy Ridge, which forms part of the sprawling four-domed Triangle Hill and which commands a strategic view of the Communist lines. The Communists owned Triangle, Jane Russell and Pike's Peak.

The enemy troops suffered heavy casualties in their fight for Triangle and Jane Russell. Allied officials estimated that the American and South Korean troops have killed, wounded or taken prisoner an entire Red division—between 8,500 and 12,000 men since the hill battles began on October 14.

MIG DOWNED American F-80 Sabre jets, meanwhile, shot down one Russian-built MIG-15, probably destroyed and damaged another while screening a Shooting Star attack upon enemy troop concentrations at Namsidong, about 15 miles from the mouth of the Yalu River in northernmost Korea.

The ROK troops crawled three times nearly 500 yards up the shell-churned and smoke-obscured slope of Triangle before being battered back by hand grenades lobbed down on them by fanatic Red fighters. At Jane Russell Hill to the northeast, the South Koreans closed the hole cut in their defence line by a 200-man assault, but the Reds methodically chopped away bunker after bunker until the ROK defenders were forced to withdraw shortly before nightfall.—United Press.

Snags In Jet Planes

London, Nov. 3. Difficulties have developed with the Royal Navy's only carrier-borne jet aircraft—the fighter Attacker—and pilots have been temporarily banned from flying the jets at high speed or high altitude, the Admiralty said last night. Pilots have encountered trouble when using the jets at speeds and heights that might be necessary in combat. The matter is now under investigation. The Attacker is a single-seat non-pressurized aircraft. There are three squadrons of them in service.—Reuter.

Air Passenger Jumps Off

Milan, Nov. 3. A man, who said he got frightened at the last moment, jumped off a plane as it roared down the runway for a take off here yesterday.

The man, Giovanni Colla, 33, was unhurt. "At the very last moment, I got frightened at the roar of the engines. It was my first time in a plane. There was only one thing to do—jump out."

Other passengers in the twin-engined Italian plane were unable to stop him.—Reuter.

Minister In The Front Lines

Seoul, Nov. 2. The South African Defence Minister, Mr. F. C. Erasmus, today watched South African Air Force planes rocket hill positions on the Korean front line. The Minister paid a short visit to the Commander, Major-General M.M.A.R. West. He was accompanied by Brigadier H. G. Willmott, Chief of the Union's Air Staff.—Reuter.

Call For A Federation Of Atlantic Pact Nations

TO PREVENT WORLD WAR

New York, Nov. 3.

Professor Arnold J. Toynbee, famed British historian, today called for a speedy federation of the NATO nations into one political and economic unit as the only chance to stave off a third World War.

Such a federation, he said, also, offered the West its only chance of recapturing world initiative.

In an article in Look magazine, Professor Toynbee stated his belief that a union of the Democratic nations was "the next step in history."

Prelate On Racial Intolerance

York, Nov. 2. Dr. Cyril Garbett, Archbishop of York, said today that the Church must reject any policy which attempted to keep races in permanent separation or exclude them from Western culture.

Three great problems—nationalism, racialism and aggressive Communism—stood out in the world, he said in an address today. "Where hunger and want existed there was a ready field for Communism, but colour racialism was an even greater danger."

Nationalism, by which nations thought only of their own rights and interests, was recognized as a menace to peace.

For a long time the white man had often treated the coloured races as beasts of burden, but the Christian must refuse to despise the races because of their colour or mental immaturity, he said.

The Archbishop, senior Prelate of the Anglican Church after the Archbishop of Canterbury, declared: "The Church must call for the removal of all social injustice, whether at home or in Asia."

"We must support the United Nations Organization and all international attempts to substitute law for force."

"Marxism is by its very nature aggressive and will never be satisfied until it has subdued the world. The statesmen must check it by diplomacy and armed force."—Reuter.

BRITAIN'S ROYAL FAMILY Descended From Ancient Kings

London, Nov. 2. A team of historians has established beyond doubt that Queen Elizabeth II is descended from King Woden, a German ruler of the fourth century.

Historical data has shown that the Queen could trace her family back to 829 A.D. when the first King of England, the Saxon King Egbert, reigned.

But Mr. L. G. Pine, editor of Burke's Peerage, one of Britain's leading chronicles of nobility, told Reuter today that he has found that the roots of the Royal Family trees are entwined in the early Christian Era.

He has ploughed back through 11 generations of Egbert's family to King Cedric, who ruled over the ancient kingdom of Wessex in 820 A.D., 110 years after the end of the Roman occupation.

From there he had gone back 12 more generations to King Woden.

"He was once thought to be a mythical figure," Mr. Pine said. "But now historians know he was a real live king."

It is even possible that the Queen could trace her ancestors back to Biblical times. But records before the time of Woden are impossible to find.—Reuter.

Slim: "This Won't Make A Monty"

London, Nov. 2. Field-Marshal Sir William Slim said to 300 students in London: "Some people seem to think that if they put two badges in their cap they are Monty. They are not."

"They think that if they carry an onion in one hand and an alarm clock in the other they are Wingate. They are not."

"It is the essentials and not the trills that count. We have got in our country a tremendous capacity for leadership, and we don't want to lose it. We have the capacity to produce the commanders."

Sir William, who retired as Chief of the Imperial General Staff on Saturday, was speaking at the University of London winter term lecture.

The qualities of a commander, said the Field-Marshal, were power, moral and physical courage, a flexible mind, imagination, and knowledge of men, the enemy, tactics, and administration. Above all, a commander needed integrity.

Special Stamp Wanted For Comet Mails

London, Nov. 2. Many people who call at the little prefabricated Post Office at London Airport want their air mail specially stamped—but they go away disappointed.

Mr. Eric Chaplin, officer in charge, said:

"We have constant inquiries from visitors who wish to have letters date-stamped with a London Airport mark or who wish to send a picture postcard or special airport letter back to where they have just flown in from. But there aren't any."

"If we had airmail envelopes marked 'London Airport' we could sell thousands."

"A lot of stamp enthusiasts hoped that mail carried on the Comet to South Africa and Ceylon would have a special cancellation mark, but it did not."

"One woman brought a letter from Wolverhampton hoping to get it included in the Comet airmail."

"They think that if they carry an onion in one hand and an alarm clock in the other they are Wingate. They are not."

"It is the essentials and not the trills that count. We have got in our country a tremendous capacity for leadership, and we don't want to lose it. We have the capacity to produce the commanders."

Sir William, who retired as Chief of the Imperial General Staff on Saturday, was speaking at the University of London winter term lecture.

The qualities of a commander, said the Field-Marshal, were power, moral and physical courage, a flexible mind, imagination, and knowledge of men, the enemy, tactics, and administration. Above all, a commander needed integrity.

The present economic and political disunity of the West, he said, presented a tempting weakness to enemies which might lead them into actions provoking a third World War. The West would then have unity with a vengeance, he added.

For even if the West were victorious, "an atom-bombed world could not afford what would then be the luxury of preserving even a minimum of local variety and liberty."

Professor Toynbee wrote that a political union of Western nations would not mean scrapping the United Nations.

The United Nations, he pointed out, was not in fact a political community at all. It was a political forum in which questions could be debated but no act of government could be performed.

It would still remain valuable, he declared, as the closest approach the United States and Russia could make to one another.

U.S. AS MODEL To meet, even to quarrel in a forum, was better than never to meet at all, he added.

Professor Toynbee proposed a political structure for Western nations modelled on the United States Federal constitution.

To get a Western Union started on a working basis, he advocated the following steps:

1. That the legislatures of the Western nations in the NATO instruct their legislative committees on finance, defence and foreign affairs to meet regularly in common to consider and recommend a common Western policy, a common Western system of defence and common ways and means for financing these common Western services.

2. That a convention of delegation of legislatures meet to agree upon rules of procedure. He urged that delegations should not vote as national blocs but that each delegate be free to vote according to his individual judgment as he would in his national legislature at home.

3. That a common Western legislative body, democratically elected by direct popular vote, be charged with the supreme responsibility of controlling the Western community's executive services.—Reuter.

She Gave Cash To General

London, Nov. 2. Mrs. Doris Sophie McGarvie, 57, of Palace-court, Bayswater, W., was discharged from bankruptcy at London Bankruptcy Court.

At her public examination Mrs. McGarvie said her failure was mainly due to giving £7,000 to General Miguel Ydigoras-Fuentes, an official of the Guatemalan Republic, to invest on her behalf abroad.

He had left this country in March 1950, and she had not received any of her money back. She had heard that he went into hiding after being engaged in an abortive attempt to overthrow the Government of his country.

The Official Receiver, Mr. F.H. Langmaid, said he had received a letter from a firm of solicitors who said they were acting for the general and that they had received instructions from his son.

They were instructed to say there was "not an atom of truth" in the suggestions made by Mrs. Munn.

Mr. Registrar Parton told Mrs. Munn he would accept her story "because there is no evidence displayed to disprove it."

Naval Exercises In The "Med"

Naples, Nov. 2. Blacked-out troop and supply convoys are to steam out of Mediterranean ports at midnight tonight in an attempt to sneak through "enemy" minefields and submarine packs at the opening of the NATO naval exercise "Longstep."

About 170 ships and 500 aircraft from France, Greece, Italy, Turkey, the United States and Britain will take part in the ten-day exercises. The general idea of "Longstep" is to see how far friendly "Blue" convoys can be blocked by enemy "Green" sea and air forces.

The manoeuvres will range from Gibraltar to the Dardanelles and may include an amphibious landing by Marines in the Eastern Mediterranean. It is estimated that a total of 100,000 men will take part in the six-nation exercise.

Greece and Turkey are participating in NATO manoeuvres for the first time. American Admiral Robert Carney, Commander-in-Chief of Allied forces in southern Europe, will be in overall command.

U.S. GENERAL Co-ordination of the air forces will be in the hands of American General David Scholter, Commander of Allied Air Forces in Southern Europe.

The convoys will come under the command of the Allied subordinate zone commanders, Admiral Antonio Sala commands the French zone while Admiral Massimo Ghini is in charge of the Italian zone.

Commanding the American Sixth Fleet will be Admiral John F. Cassidy. The "attacking" submarines will be commanded by Captain Edward H. Pibey of the British Navy.

Admiral Tachin Talayan will command the Turkish Navy units while the Greeks will be under Captain Konstantinos Nikitades.

Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, Commander-in-Chief of the British Mediterranean Fleet, will visit Rome tomorrow. He will call on Government leaders and Service chiefs and have an audience with the Pope.

It is expected that he will also visit the "Longstep" headquarters at Naples.—Reuter.

QUEBEC CONFERENCE London, Nov. 2. Leading military officials of Canada, Britain and the United States will hold an infantry conference in Quebec city beginning on November 7.

The closed conference, which will last three to four days, will review development of equipment, arrange standardization trials and exchange information.—Reuter.

SABOTEURS FOR RAF London, Nov. 2. The United States and Canada are co-operating in providing the Royal Air Force with 300 to 400 Saboteur aircraft, the Air Ministry announced today.

Engines, electronic equipment and instruments will be provided by the United States through mutual defence assistance funds. The aircraft will be supplied and built in Canada and the aircraft assembled there.

The aircraft will form an important part of the Royal Air Force contribution to NATO forces.—Reuter.

RUSSIAN AID TO RED CHINA London, Nov. 2. Traffic on the Trans-Siberian Railway between the Soviet Union and Communist China has risen sharply since the Chinese Foreign Minister, Chou En-lai, left Moscow on September 22.

US intelligence reports to this effect have been checked and found correct.

The nature of the increased Soviet supplies to China has not yet been established.

However, Chou En-lai clearly secured in Moscow increased supplies of either commercial or military goods for the purpose of allowing the Soviet Union to continue to use the naval base of Port Arthur, instead of withdrawing at the end of this year as agreed in the 1950 treaty, as well as Dairen as a free port.

An increase in military supplies would fit the new Soviet strategy outlined at the Moscow Communist Party Congress, in which China is expected to have subscribed the doctrine of "divisions in the west and camp." The indefinite continuation of the Korean War would be one of the most effective means of acquiring this.

Britain Washes Hands Of Trieste Dispute

Compromise Effort Abandoned

London, Nov. 2. Authoritative quarters today dismissed suggestions of a new British move for a compromise settlement of the ill-fated Italo-Yugoslav dispute over Trieste.

Britain, it was learned, has in fact decided to discontinue for the time being her intervention in the conflict because of her failure last month to persuade both parties to make peace.

Britain may leave it to the United States to make the next step and to approach at some later date, Italy and Yugoslavia with yet another reminder that settlement is necessary in their own as well as in the Western nations' interest.

Prospects for a rapprochement between Italy and Yugoslavia appeared very dim after the rebuff to Mr. Anthony Eden's recent approach in Belgrade to Marshal Tito.

Britain's intervention last month with Marshal Tito and the Italian premier, Signor Alcide De Gasperi, on the Trieste question has been unable to resolve the deadlock.

which is considered at present here more complete than ever.

Diplomats said Yugoslavia's rejection of Italian suggestions for a decision by the International Court at The Hague has since added to existing tension.

PLANS HELD UP The deadlock over the territorial issue is holding up plans for closer co-operation in other matters between Italy and Yugoslavia. Defence is one of the most pressing.

Suggestions current in London at the week-end claimed that Britain had been passing on to Italy last week Yugoslav proposals to shelve the territorial problem of Trieste temporarily and to concentrate instead on co-operation in economic and defence matters.

It was claimed these moves resulted from meetings in the past fortnight in London between Mr. Eden and the Italian and Yugoslav Ambassadors.

However, these reports were given little credence in official quarters, who believed there was no scope for compromise moves so soon after Britain's all-out peace efforts collapsed. Nor is it believed that co-operation between Italy and Yugoslavia on any appreciable scale is feasible so long as the Trieste dispute remains unresolved.—United Press.

Railway Of Death Man Convicted

London, Nov. 2. Lieut-General A. E. Percival, president of the Far East Prisoners of War Association, stated that the association would start an inquiry into the conviction of "Z" Robert George Heaton—whom the Japanese forced to dig his own grave.

Heaton, 33, of Sheldon, Birmingham, a former prisoner of the Japanese, was fined £5 at Birmingham for failing to report for reservist training.

A solicitor told the court that Heaton was a prisoner for 3½ years. Half starved, he was put to work on the Siam "Railway of Death." He had dysentery, fever and jaundice, was beaten every day, and was tortured from time to time.

Mr. P. P. Pugh, prosecuting, said Heaton failed to report to a Japanese camp in August for training and did not acknowledge the call-up notice. In a lodge statement Heaton said he had applied to a Congenial Objectioners' Tribunal for exemption on the ground of his sufferings, but had been refused.

"I feel that by putting on uniform again, no matter for how short a period, I take the risk, if an emergency arises, of being taken prisoner again," Heaton said. "I cannot take the risk. I do not intend ever to report."

The Pocket TV Set

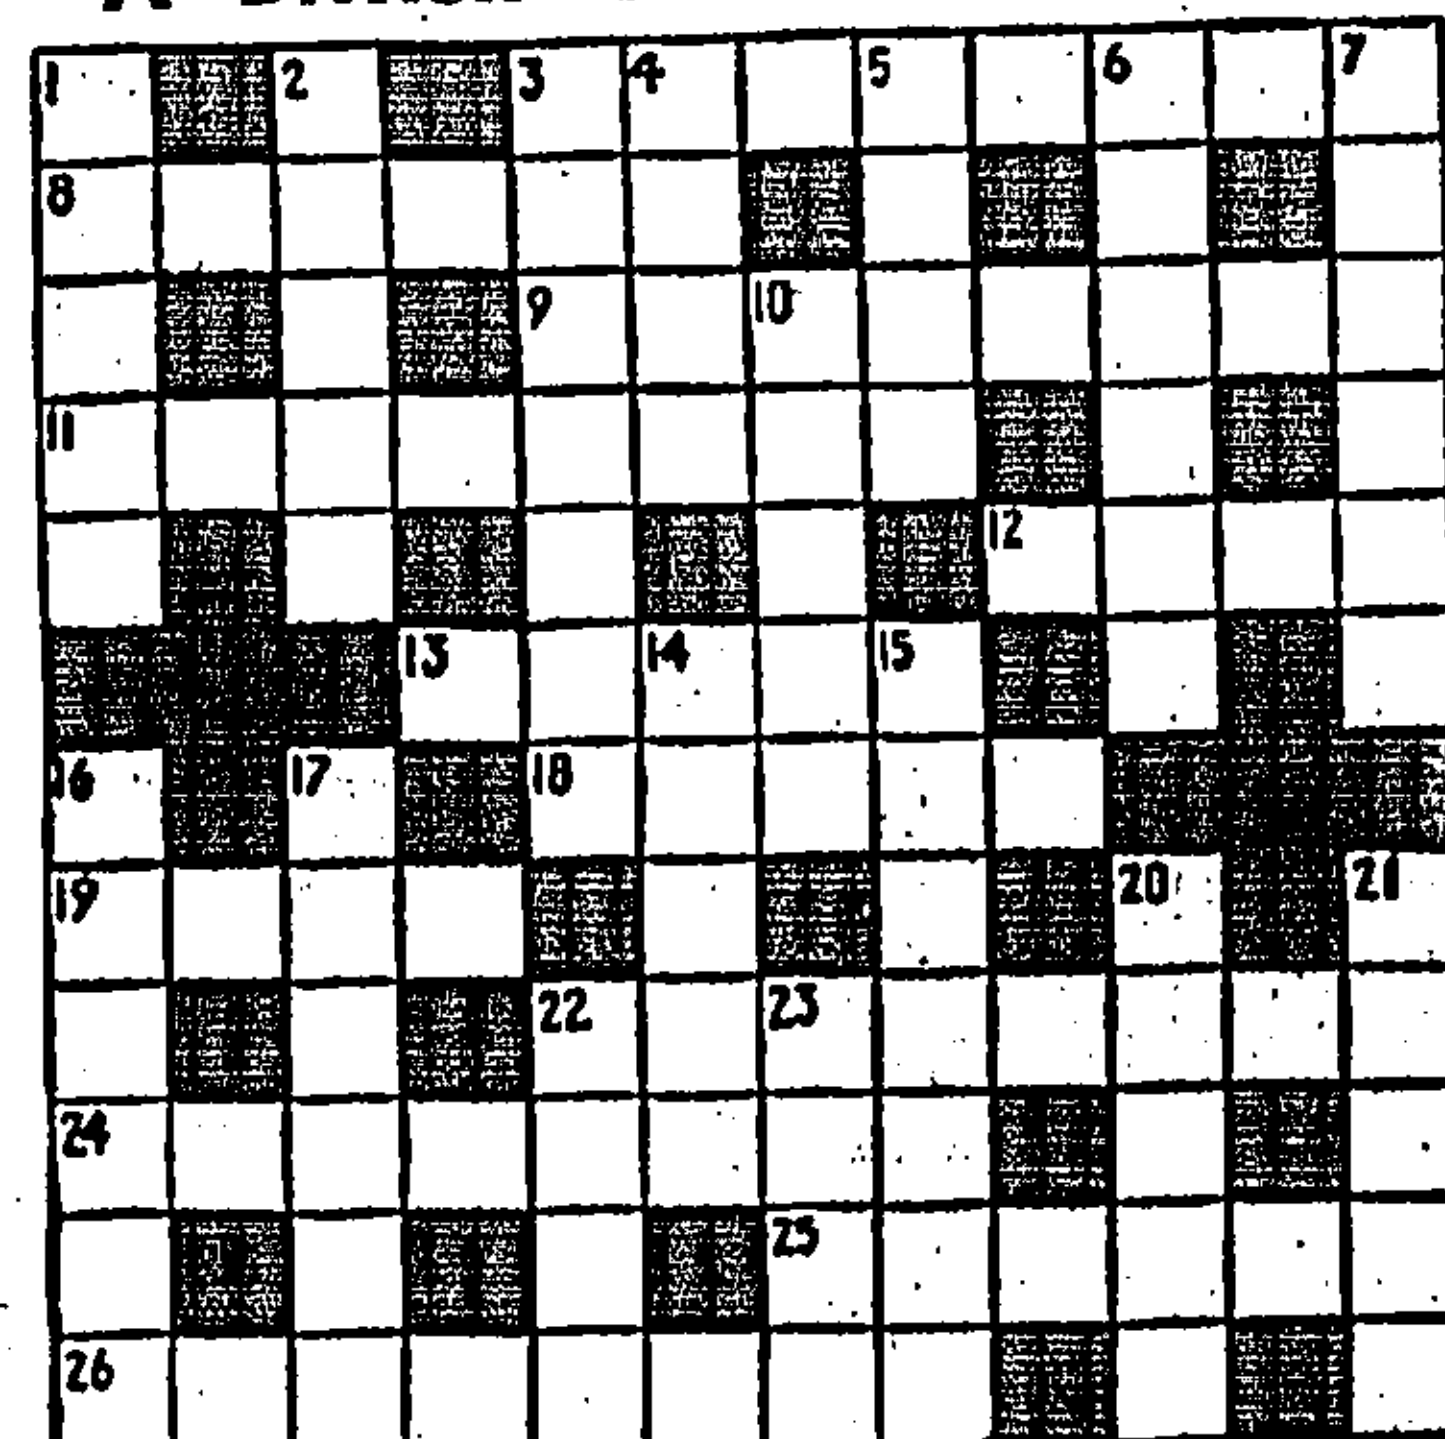

London, Nov. 2. The vest-pocket TV—the size of a large packet of biscuits, and showing a picture three inches by two—has made its appearance at the Earls Court radio show.

But hundreds of people who have made inquiries about the set have been told: "It is not for sale."

The set is a "mini-model" made for BBC commentators who want to follow the pictures being watched by viewers. It gives a brilliant picture, even in the light.

One man said he would like a set to put on the arm of his chair. "My wife does not like television and I do," he said. "I could view without disturbing her."

THE CHAPLIN TRIUMPH
—AND WHAT I THINK

By BEVERLEY BAXTER M.P.

NOT since Tiberius entered Rome or Hitler mounted the rostrum at Nuremberg has there been such a reception for a celebrity. On the stage was a Guards' Band whose trumpets sounded a fanfare above the rest of the band playing "God Save the Queen."

Princess Margaret and her party took their seats in the are-light section reserved for them.

And then the great man himself, looking like a genial dictator, strolled to his seat in the front row of the circle, and bowed acknowledgments to the cheering crowds. Whereupon Mr. Charles Chaplin then set down to look at the first presentation of the film "Limelight," of which he is the director, author, composer, financier and star.

My wife and I also settled down in our seats which had cost 15 guineas each, for the great event was in aid of a splendid charity. As London is something of a village we saw the usual inhabitant of all about us—Noel Coward, Douglas Fairbanks, and the rest of them. Outside the cinema the milling crowds held up the traffic and no one cared. It was an event. And the London crowds love to be part of an event even if they only see the performance of the audience arriving and departing.

HOT ICE

YOU will recall that with a maladroitness difficult to understand, the American authorities announced that having granted Mr. Charles Chaplin (who has remained a British subject by choice) a return permit they were not certain that he would be allowed to come back to America. This, as Shakespeare observes, was indeed hot ice. An airline might as well sell a return ticket and then decline to honour it.

In Britain there was an immediate and almost hysterical reaction. It would seem that Charlie was the most beloved member of our family. It is true that he did not come to us in our war troubles, or entertain our troops, or send us any bundles, but what of that? He had made us laugh and he had made us cry.

If America didn't want Charlie we would take him to our hearts and even kill the not very fat calf for him. We would put the candle in the window and keep the teapot brewing on the hearth. Like Shakespeare and Herbert Morrison, he had once lived on the South Bank of London, and we would acclaim him as a favourite son. But what about his alleged sympathy with Communism? We couldn't be bothered about that.

So the little man arrived with his attractive young wife, his children and their older half-brother Sydney. They were given an uproarious welcome, and the talk was duly slaughtered.

Then came the advent of the famous film, "Limelight," in which he was going to reveal the genius which he had brought at long last to the talkies. He had been the unchallenged star of the silent film and had refused to risk his laurels by adding sound to sight, and had ventured only moderately into the realm of talkies. Now, however, we were to get Chaplin at the full tide of his voice and genius.

Our interest was enhanced by the fact that he had selected a young English actress, Claire Bloom, as his leading lady. Since acting in "Limelight," she had conquered London as Juliet in the Old Vic production of that most exquisite of Shakespeare's plays, In the company of. In fact, we acclimated her Juliet of the century. I want to the first night and can never remember being so moved as by her exquisite tenderness in the Balcony Scene. If ghosts walk I hope that Shakespeare was somewhere about that night.

NOT UNANIMOUS

THE first showing of "Limelight" was to the critics, together with an invited audience of people in the film and newspaper world. We read next day that at the end of the performance the critics stood up and cheered the great little silver-haired star as he walked out. This was something. Most of our film critics take a very despicable view of new films, but apparently Charlie had momentarily transcended the critical stomach.

They were not, however, unanimous in their verdicts when they put pen to paper. Some acclaimed "Limelight" as a masterpiece and confessed that they had wept tears of sadness and tears of laughter. Others declared it to be too long, and one or two thought the philosophy of the piece was somewhat banal, but on the whole it was an enthusiastic reception. The fact is that they had wept, laughed and cheered. Who could ask more than that?

OLD CLOWN

THEREFORE on the morning of the Gala Premiere I was full of curiosity and expectancy, and was delighted when a note arrived from Lord Strabolgi inviting me to join a private dinner at the House of Lords in honour of Chaplin on the next Monday night. Strabolgi used to sit as a Liberal in the Commons as Commander Kenworthy, but when his father died he went to the Lords and became a Socialist. It was he who organised the Gala night charity, and as one Left Winger to another he probably wanted to pay tribute to Charlie in the kind of pomp and privilege of the Upper House. I looked forward to meeting the great little man.

Now for the film as it was revealed to us on the Gala night. As the lights dimmed I saw that my handkerchief was at the ready, for like most people I enjoy a good cry in the theatre. The air was tense with excitement.

You will remember that the picture opened with a promising situation. In a shabby London boarding house about the year 1912 Claire Bloom, an out of work dancer, had tried to commit suicide because she thought that her legs were paralysed.

To this house, where he also lived, came Charlie as an out-of-work clown. He was drunk, so that his legs were pretty well paralysed too. We learn that he was the great clown Calvero, once the rage of London, now fallen on evil days.

Drunk as he was he managed to carry the girl up to his room, and there begins the sad little love story of Spring with late Autumn. Whereupon Charlie starts to talk.

There is no reason why a comic should talk in private life as he does on the stage, but should he have a voice and a vocabulary which is something between the chairman of a bank and a professor of psychology?

He lectures the poor little dancer on the philosophy of life as if she were a class at Yale. The one thing that matters is desire—the desire to live, to be, to conquer. Look at the roses achieving beauty and form; look at the rocks with their design.

As her legs were paralysed—or, at least, she thought they were—there was no escape. Calvero had found an audience that could not walk out on him, and he made the most of it.

SUPERBLY DONE

If he had only faltered for a word or stumbled into an occasional incoherence, it would not have been so bad. But he gave the impression that he would have addressed the combined Houses of Parliament without an extra tremor of the heart. It was only when he stopped talking that we saw that Chaplin's genius is still alive. The scene where he returns to a third-rate music hall and gives us the seedy, indomitable tramp once more is superbly done.

To me the picture had been boring, the philosophy juvenile, the music and ballet dancing no more than adequate, and this only genius recognisable was when Chaplin reverted to the old-fashioned days. It is only fair to say that the crowd at the cinema gave him a great ovation at the finish.

On balance the Sunday film critics were enthusiastic. Only one wretched fellow had said that it was a poor thing. Yet on the following evening at Strabolgi's dinner I would have to meet Citizen Chaplin face to face.

Fortunately, by agreement with my host, I arrived twenty minutes late for the dinner, having had to deliver a speech at a Tory recruiting meeting in North Paddington. The dinner was a big affair of about 400 people and, with a bit of luck, I could get away without the embarrassment of a personal talk with the guests of honour.

True to his colours Lord Strabolgi had chosen his guests (and therefore their wives) from the hierarchy of the Socialist Party. Herbert Morrison was in good form; ex-Chancellor Hugh Gaitskell looked as he always does, like a diffident David Copperfield; Arthur Greenwood, Treasurer of the Socialist Party, was as full of sound wisdom as ever; Lord Jowett, late Socialist Lord Chancellor, looked more like a Tory than John Bull himself; Sir Hartley Shawcross, the debonair Attorney General of the Socialist regime, gave a special elegance to the scene. Walters in second tier supplied the final climax of poignancy.

It was not exactly what the Tolpuddle Martyrs, or Keir Hardie, would have visualised, but modern British Socialists see no reason why tradition and elegance should belong solely to the Tories. They are quite right.

WRONG SIDE

WHEN the dinner was finished Strabolgi called on Morrison to propose Chaplin's health. It was a theme after Morrison's Cockney heart, for, as I have said, both he and Charlie knew objectivity. On the wrong side of London's river. As he neared the finish of his eulogy he was putting Charlie rather above the immortal William himself, when my attention was distracted by the arrival of a note from our host.

"I am calling on you next." That was all, but it was enough. I don't know how Herbert's speech ended because I was trying to think how mine would begin. No matter how much I could poke a bit of fun at the Socialist hierarchy present, I would have to come eventually to the guest of honour.

So the moment arrived when I had to say my say about Charlie to Mr. Chaplin. As far as I remember it went something like this:

"Charlie—for I refuse to call you Charles despite Herbert's example—I want to say something about critics. We

ANY editor will tell you that there are far more important items in the news than the announcement in this paper on Saturday of a new electric iron with a water tank in which you simply add "8 drops of a special perfume—and your linen and lingerie is given the scent of pine or lavender to order." Nevertheless, we are not going to let an opportunity slip by of pointing out the possible dangers of an otherwise splendid aid to hygiene.

critics see so many things that perhaps unknown to ourselves our appetite lessens and our palate grows more keen. So we are inclined to become fastidious in our taste and therefore removed from public taste. We cannot forget what you were in the days of the silent film when you carried the art of miming to such heights.

"The unconquerable courage of your bowler-hatted clown, carrying his stick like a copier, captured the heart and the imagination of the world. You were a ridiculous figure with a dignity of your own. You were an absurdity that became an expression of sanity in a mad world. But in those days you expressed a world meaning by a mere twitch of the shoulder, or the raising of your hat.

"You did not need words. That is what hurt us in your new film. Where once you explained everything by what you did, now you have descended to the level of politicians who say everything and continue to do so even when they have nothing more to say. We welcome you as you are, but we miss what you used to be."

A GENTLE SOUL

WELL, that is the end of the story. I have since learned that he has cut nearly half an hour of the film, but he must cut more than that before I would sit through it again.

Finally, what is he like as a man? He is a gentle soul, with a heart of war and a passionate belief that the people of the world should live in amity together. By Hollywood standards he is an intellectual, but the processes of his mind are young rather than sage.

But as an artist I cannot believe that he has anything significant to bring to the cinema now. He won our hearts as the silent clown, and if he had been wise he would have said, like Hamlet: "The rest is silence!"

And Mr. Newman, who has no political strings attached, says the United States is in for a period of continued prosperity.

He reaches this conclusion after an extensive economic study and talks with many economists.

Mr. Newman expects a setback in about 18 months (just about the time war production passes its peak), but says it will be short-lived and not severe. FRENCH DEMAND

Nato Army For Indo-China

From SYDNEY SMITH

Paris, Oct. 25.

SOCIALISTS in the French Assembly are demanding that NATO forces should be sent to aid the hard-pressed French in Indo-China.

The Socialist parliamentary leader, Marcel Naegelen, was cheered by every group except the Communists this week when he told the National Assembly "France has already bled so much for the defence of the free world. Her resources are not inexhaustible—it is the duty of the Assembly to say so, and of the government to make it known to our allies."

Naegelen, interpreting his own speech afterwards, said that his complaint naturally implied the relief of French troops by international forces. French manpower sacrifices are too heavy, he said.

The Socialist demand for NATO forces follows Prime Minister Pinay's complaint to parliament that, while the French are withdrawing towards the coast in North Indo-China, the next major deliveries of American aid are not due until the first quarter of next year.

However, the American Embassy in Paris has revealed that, on the American side, the eye-witness authority: "The port of Saigon has more ships unloading American aid than the authorities there can deal with. There is not enough room for all the vessels—and certainly no room for any more."

This American counter to what appears to be popular French misunderstanding comes at a time when French opinion on American aid to Indo-China is at an all time low level.

The average Frenchman in the street, shocked and dismayed by the daily news of enemy successes in Indo-China, is getting little news of the actual help that America is giving.

But, in fact, in that overcrowded port of Saigon the 200th cargo ship of American aid has arrived at the overburdened quaysides to unload its cargo of artillery, planes and ammunition.

The rhythm of American aid, in fact, seems to have been stepped up beyond the French Indo-China Command's ability to deal with it.

In the last three months alone nearly 80 American shipsloads worth of "End Item Aid" that means military equipment ready for action, has been poured into Indo-China.

In addition, according to American official sources in Paris, in the twelve months up to last July, France received half a billion dollars direct military budget aid in cash—half of which is considered to have gone to Indo-China.

However, apparently the latest developments in Indo-China are being seized on by the government's opposition as a reason for demanding further, yet more British and American guarantees before approving the six-nation European Army plan, which would commit France's major forces to Europe.

The root of the problem is certainly that France considers she is fighting in Indo-China a battle just as vital to the West as Korea but without all the understanding and the vast support that Korea is receiving.

CASEY STENGEL, 61-year-old manager of the New York Yankees, gets a chance to win the world's baseball championship for the fourth successive year. His salary goes up by 25,000 dollars ($23,250) to $48,250 a year (£23,710).

HAVE doctors the right, like five engines and ambulances, to exceed the speed limit?

Dr. Joseph Epstein, a leading brain surgeon who was clocked doing 80 miles an hour, said in his defence: "In a New York court today that he explained to the policeman he was on his way to a patient suffering from a brain hemorrhage."

"But the officer," he said, "insisted on giving me a lengthy lecture. If he hadn't delayed so long my patient might not have died."

The case continues. ARMY officials say if the new peace is maintained in the Korean fighting they will have trouble finding replacements for the G.I.s due to come home under the rotation scheme.

SAD thought—about 1,500,000 children will be picked up by the police in 1959 if the present rate of juvenile delinquency continues in America.

"I'll take them all."

• BY • THE • WAY • by Beachcomber

I AM sorry to have given C. Such, Esq., the impression that I was confounding a necessary re-implementation of co-ordination measures relative to the demands made by a thorough overhaul of existing priorities with the development of a basic schedulization already undertaken by the registration authorities.

In these controversies it is important not to lose sight of prime factors. Simultaneous duplication can never be anything but a tentative expedient, with the object of reducing delay to a minimum by means of a short-circuiting of potential exchanges of permits. It is when the cumulative effects of redundant applications threaten to bottleneck the various channels of allocations that the whole question becomes one of overall departmental salubrity.

The Maharajah lost all his money at Monte Carlo and had to sell his elephants. Years later he was working as an ice-cream vendor in a restaurant in London. One night he went to a circus and took a fourpenny ticket. Among the performers was his old elephant, who, seeing his former master, at once approached, lifted him out of the fourpenny, and with a flourish of the trunk, deposited him in the one-and-eightpenny.

YOUR BIRTHDAY By STELLA

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 3

BORN today, you have a deep, quiet nature, susceptible to inner moods which you are never-thought to camouflage from most people unless they know you very well indeed. This contrast will be to reach your aspirations, for without it, your life would become much too complex for you to cope with.

You have a very affectionate nature and can only be completely happy if you are surrounded by congenial people. If you must leave home before marriage and work in a distant city, do not attempt to live by yourself. You won't like it at all! Your best happiness will come when you are with home and family of your own—Fond of children, you will want a large family.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Threw Caution Out, Had Terrific Game

By OSWALD JACOBY

ALL bridge players are divided into two classes—those who can be shut out and those who can't. Many years ago, I remember, I was the kind of player who would always bid when an opponent tried to shut me out. I may not be any wiser today, but I'm at least more cautious.

My son Jim, who played as my partner in the Men's Pair event of the recent national championships, has probably inherited my unwillingness to be shut out. Fortunately or unfortunately, I'm not sure which, he has not yet acquired my caution.

As a result, Jim was able to star on the hand shown today.

East should look at when East opens the bidding with four hearts? To pass may allow the opponents to get away with murder, but to bid a disaster. When Jim held the South cards, asked questions with confidence of youth, he bid four spades and took his chances.

West doubled like the crack of doom, and opened the seven of hearts after everybody had passed. East was the first to bid the king of hearts and pondered mightily.

His heart not in sight was the device, and it was important to guess who held it. If South had a deuce of hearts, it was vital for East to cash another heart trick at once; since otherwise he would never get it.

If West held the deuce of hearts it was vital for East to switch at lead.

once to diamonds in order to make the best use of his only chance to lead.

East decided first that West would not double if he held two hearts, and then decided that South would not bid four spades if he held two hearts. This led to a mental coin and led the second heart.

It was an unfortunate choice for East. Jim, suffered the second heart, fished dummy's queen of clubs, returned to his hand by leading a trump to the ace, fished the jack of clubs, and returned to his hand again by leading a trump to the king.

Now Jim could lead a third club to dummy and discard a diamond on one of dummy's losing clubs. West hastened to ruff the fourth club, but what was West to do next? He could not lead his remaining high trump, but then he had to lead a diamond. The forced diamond lead gave Jim a free finesse—his ace.

I'm afraid Jim will never learn to be cautious as long as he can get away with living dangerously.

TODAY'S QUESTION
The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spades 8-5-2, Hearts K-J-7-3, Diamonds Q-5, Clubs A-Q-3. What do you do?

I'll take this car if you will remove those two red lights at the rear. Just look what's happening, Knarf!

"Birds can't harm me," she said to herself, as she continued climbing.

Chirpie Sparrow spied Knarf and Hand and came flying down to them.

WOMANSENSE

Middy Dress

By GRACE THORNCLEIFFE

IT LOOKS as though new first autumn fabric, cotton tweed, is going to do all right. It adds up to the perfect fabric for that last dress of summer that is also the first dress of early autumn.

Tan and brown cotton tweed is used for this one, a middy dress with the line dipping in a nice curve in front and back. The waistline is defined by a big bold brown leather fascia. Brown bone buttons close the collarless front, and the skirt is side pleated all around.

The weirdness of the jewellery can be seen from the illustrations. Centrepiece is a chandelier-type of ear-ring, which is proving popular for evening wear. With it goes one of the new bracelets which has daisy-like discs attached to it.

Surrounding this centerpiece are further examples of the new jewellery. Why not an unusual fob to wear dangling from your belt or lapel? (Illustrated left). Or an elaborate ear-ring? (Illustrated right). Or an outside brooch fashioned after a banjo? (Illustrated right).

Do you prefer a scarf ring to keep the newest of pleated chiffon scarves in place? (Those scarves, incidentally, come in a rainbow of shades including lime yellow, red, blue and shocking pink, and make an excellent trimming for a suit, dress or sweater).

NEW JEWELLERY FROM OLD

By Dorothy Barkley

London.

ANY old silver is the cry going round just now in fashionable circles. Hand-beaten silver—and metal pieces are the latest in jewellery.

The fashion began with an exhibition of the work of a young TA, who, in his spare time, has made costume jewellery, brooches, scarves, and fobs, all in weird shapes. The exhibition was spotted by the owner of a London boutique who liked the jewellery, and bought the entire collection.

Now it is on prominent display in his boutique, and selling as fast as the proverbial hot cakes.

Women seem to like this weird, almost "primitive" jewellery, which looks more like something left behind by our Anglo-Saxon forbears than anything of this modern age. They say it is different, unusual, and does not have the sameness of mass-produced pieces.

Another new idea, to be seen in boutiques just now, takes its inspiration from the East. The many Eastern women living in London nowadays have unconsciously set a fashion. London women have admired their beautiful, brightly-coloured saris, and now the same silk for saris, evening stoles and western-type evening dresses. Scarves, in red, blue or white, interwoven with a narrow gold band, are sold in two styles. One is narrow and short for day wear; the second is longer and broader for evening wear. (Illustrated).

The miniature Juliet cap is a second evening style shown in the boutiques, and is particularly popular amongst theatre-goers and cocktail party guests. It can be embroidered with gold, black or "petrol" sequins. Main advantage, it seems, is that in the theatre it doesn't offend the ladies must remove their hats so that the gentlemen can see" rule.

POSTSCRIPT TO FASHION
Do you keep on the fashion mark as fashion changes each season, and watch the new ideas as they are introduced? If so, here are some ideas: the midday line, with unaccentuated waist; a "bottle-bust" for day or evening wear; a jacquette (a

WATCH THAT CHIN LINE

By HELEN FOLLETT

Watch your chin line! If double-trouble appears, massage your chin with heavy cream, then apply good-quality witch hazel.

It has been said that the chin is the seat of character. Perhaps there's something to that. The woman who sticks out her chin usually has a belligerent nature, is looking for trouble, and finds plenty of it. The one who pulls her chin down and inward is likely to be considered intolerant and critical. The highly efficient woman who thinks that nobody can do anything as well as she can may have a forbidding chin. She clicks her teeth together, draws her lips into fine, stern line.

That facial gesture suggests determination or haughtiness. There are chins that are long, chins that are short and wide, others that are soft, beautifully moulded. In the middle age, a chin may be bracketed with up and down lines, but that is a woman's own fault. If she had started a beautifying campaign early in life, instead of nourishing cream generously, patted and slapped, the flesh would have remained smooth and firm.

A Chin Mate
The meanest chin is the one that takes unto itself a mite, a horrid little underslung pouch for which a woman has no use whatsoever and which she hates like sin. This situation also could have been side-stepped by more moderate eating habits and cosmetic attentions.

Should it be that you have observed a faint line just south of the point of your chin, take warning. Another one may be on the way, may come before you realize it. Here is what should be done.

Massage Cream
After washing your face at night, rinsing with warm water to bring a glow, drying thoroughly, spread on a heavy massage emollient. Put it all over your face. You might as well make a complete job of it.

Pick up the flesh at the top of your throat, roll it between thumb and first finger to dissolve fat cells that are forming there. Throw your head back, friction your throat with up and down strokes. Sweep from chin to ear lobes. Then give your face a good spanking. Finish off by patting on good quality witch hazel. It will act as a skin-toner.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

If your new suede shoes or accessories rub off during the first few wearings, don't be alarmed. This is known as "breaking in" and is only a temporary nuisance. It will stop after the suede has been used a bit more.

If you wish to dye a fabric (silk, cotton, and wool), use a "dye" and "fixative" which are sold in small quantities. Start with yellow, and add the scarlet in small quantities.

Women who garden or do heavy work around the house should wear shoes that completely cover the foot. Open-toed, sling-back shoes are comfortable and cool, but are not safe for house-cleaning, since they do not adequately protect the foot.

SATURDAY OF SURPRISES IN THE CRICKET LEAGUE

Army, RAF, Optimists Lose

It was a Saturday of surprises in the Cricket League as Scorpions had too easy a victory of it against a fancied Royal Air Force team at Chater Road, Kowloon Cricket Club beat the Army at Sookunpoo and Recreio beat the very much fancied Optimists by six wickets in a low-scoring game at King's Park.

Thus, at the end of the fifth week of League Cricket, Scorpions and KCC have lost three points each, Optimists are four points down, RAF seven down and Army and Recreio both twice defeated.

It is going to be a hard fight for the Championship with six teams capable of upsetting each other to the tune of all four points. The Airman, Army and Recreio lay uncomfortably behind.

An ancient, D. W. Leach, scored 35 of the 61 runs the Scorpions needed to take four

Pakistan Lose Their Fast Bowler

Nagpur, Nov. 2. The Pakistan Cricket Team will play without their fast bowler, Khan Mohammed, for the rest of their tour of India as he has not recovered from groin trouble and has been declared unfit to play for two months.

The team manager, Mr. Mohammed Hussain, wired the Pakistan Cricket Control Board last night to send batsman Asghar Ali to strengthen the team before the match against the Bombay Cricket Association which starts on November 8.

Asghar, unlike Khan Mohammed, is not a bowler. Pakistan suffered a further casualty yesterday as left-hander Russi Dinshaw pulled a muscle when he was fielding. He has been ordered to take a rest for a week.

TWO CENTURIES
Nagpur, Nov. 2. The Central Zone drew with Pakistan today in a cricket match featured by fluctuating fortunes.

Centuries by Kurshid Ahmed and Abdul Kardar enabled Pakistan to recover from their overnight score of 18 for three wickets and when the visitors finally declared at 275 for five wickets the home team, was left with the almost impossible task of making up a deficit of 300 in 35 minutes.

The Central Zone was in a comfortable position at the tea interval with 58 runs for one wicket. But after the resumption there was a hectic battle for a draw when the home team suffered a disastrous collapse, losing seven more wickets.

Bhagant Singh and S. A. Rahim were together in the final ten minutes to hold Pakistan to a thrilling draw. Kardar gave a fluent display in scoring 100 for Pakistan—his first century of the tour—whereas Ahmed was unimpressive with his plodding type of play in compiling 101. Ahmed was missed before he had reached double figures.

Pakistan made 356 in their first innings, to which the Central Zone replied with 271. Central Zone were 90 for eight when the match ended.—Reuter.

SUNDERLAND NOW ON LEVEL TERMS WITH WOLVES

London, Nov. 1. Bouquet of the day for Sunderland please and a special mention for Welsh International centre-forward Trevor Ford. That 5-2 win at Maine Road over Manchester City has put Sunderland, with a game in hand, level on points with Wolves at the top of Division I.

On this form, Sunderland look like staying there. What is the Sunderland success secret? They have no new players. Indeed, of the side that was playing last season, Ivor Broadis has been transferred to Manchester. The answer is in the fire and thrust of Trevor Ford.

Last season, in his first 14 games, Trevor found the back of the net only twice. This season he has scored 11, including four today. All of which is a pertinent reminder that it is going to be a man-sized job to hold the rumbustious Welsh leader in the Wembley International on November 11.

Another "hat-trickster" in Division I was Aston Villa's inside forward Tommy Dixon, who scored a welcome 4-1 away win at Stoke.

The in-and-out form of League champions Manchester United continues. They have lost their last three home games but today, at Tottenham, they collected two more away points with a 2-1 win over the Spurs. The winning goal was scored by outside-left Berry after a great run from the half-way line.

GOING GREAT GUNS
Still going great guns in Division II, Huddersfield preserved their leadership and unbeaten away record with a 2-0 win at Southampton. Centre-forward Glazard got one of them to bring his total for the season to 13.

Close behind them are Leicester, who scored their fourth win in five games since signing international inside-forward Johnny Morris from Derby.

The outstanding individual performance in Division II was by Palace inside-forward Cam Burgess against Swindon. It was his third in four weeks. Inside-right Rainford also got three and Palace won an exciting three-goal struggle.

There is still no change in the other Third Division, with both Grimsby and Oldham having good home wins.

Aberdeen have been struck by the goal bug lately. They got another five to-day against Motherwell to bring their total for the last three matches to 15. Since the start of the League Championship, Aberdeen have been involved in nine games which have produced a total of 49 goals. That's good value at any price.

Beating League Cup winners Dundee by the odd goal in five, East Fife retained the League leadership, but champions Hibernian shocked their supporters by losing 2-0 to Third Division Centre-forward Dobbie scored both of them.

Though The FA Doesn't Recognise Them

One Thousand Clubs In London Alone Play Sunday Football

By ARCHIE QUICK

Sunday football is a subject on which the Football Association has for many years been ostrichlike. They have steadily refused to recognise its existence, but, at last, they have come into the open and are facing the matter.

A report of a Council minute reveals some startling facts. Sunday football, as far as can be ascertained, is played in 17 counties on an organised basis. London alone possesses 15 separate leagues, and as many as 1,000 clubs.

Another stronghold is Kent where there are 22 Leagues and 460 clubs, while in Middlesex there are ten Leagues and 350 clubs. Strangely enough, another of the Home Counties, Surrey, have made a "numbers unknown" return to the FA's questionnaire. Sussex have done likewise, but I happen to know that there is organised Sunday football within that county's boundaries.

A county where one would have expected Sunday football to be rife is Essex, with its large Jewish element, but it possesses only three leagues and 150 clubs.

In the North of England, Manchester has four leagues and 64 clubs, and Sabbath games are also played in Lancashire, Cumberland, Shropshire, Durham, the East Riding of Yorkshire and Northumberland. Birmingham has 250 clubs and the overall figure for England alone is 73 leagues and 2,547 clubs.

In the counties which are overtopped by London every local authority, including the London County Council, now permits Sunday football, and it is interesting to note that in the Manchester area Eccles alone bans it. 200 players have appeared before County Association for playing.

Some have been suspended or expelled, but many of them have been fined and re-instated. Only two County Associations have reported an entire club succeeding in going over, but several say that there has been a shrinkage in membership, probably due to clubs going over in another name.

The questionnaire summary shows that in the 2,547 clubs there are only seven teams from public houses and Jewish teams. In the South of England outside the London area, Hampshire possess the most clubs—80—completely confined to Portsmouth and Southampton, who have the only Sunday Benevolent Fund in the country. Sunday football is unknown in Wales and non-existent in the West of England and most of the Midlands.

The FA is shying at Sunday football's increasing hold, so it

BRAVES EDGE OUT JAGUARS 2-1 TO SET THEMSELVES UP AS A PENNANT THREAT

By "KEYSTONE"

Eddie Carvalho's aroused Braves handed their arch-rivals, the Jaguars, another bitter defeat yesterday by edging them out 2-1 in a fast, thrilling game to set themselves up again as a formidable pennant-threat this year.

In the other Senior "A" game, the unpredictable Madcaps blew an early nine-run lead to drop yet another decision to the fast-stepping Warriors.

Two strictly one-sided affairs were featured in the Ladies' League with the Squaws administering a merciless 32-2 drubbing to the evergreen CAA girls, while the Pool To schoolgirls showed the Pandas a little further downstair with a 15-3 defeat.

The double-feature Senior "B" nightcap saw the power-packed Americans unlimber all heavy artillery before subduing a fighting Pandas nine 8-3, and the Delaware tribe keeping pace with the League leaders by downing the badly-holed Red Sox 11-9. The Wildfires, rekindled by their great 10-3 win over the Sox last week, again died down to a feeble flicker with the thorough 10-4 and 10-11 doublings they received from the Blackhawks and the Rexes respectively.

PITCHERS' DUEL

As anticipated, the Braves-Jaguars grudge fight developed into a tight pitcher's duel, with Vic Pedrucci's speedballs matching Chappie Remedios' controlled slants, pitch for pitch. Both hurlers were in rare form, allowing only four hits each, with Remedios issuing the only two free bases of the whole game.

The vengeance-bent Jaguars drew first blood when two successive hits by Claude Pugh and Igmur Eriksen drove the first run of the game across the plate. This proved to be the only Jaguar run, as Chappie Remedios bore down hard and allowed no more than three other men to get on base in the subsequent four innings.

The Braves also did all their scoring in one inning when Frankie Correa started the fourth in grand manner with a rousing double. Firstsacker Yvanovich then poked out a hot infield grounder which was mis-handled, and by the time the dust cleared, Correa had galloped across the pay-station. A sacrifice, followed by a line-drive by Spiky Gutierrez brought lanky Yvanovich home for what proved to be the winning run.

Fully living up to their reputation, the Merry Madcaps built up a huge 9-0 lead in the first two innings, then sat back and merrily handed the ballgame as a gift to the Warriors, partly through over-confidence but mostly through sloppy play.

The Caps outthrew their opponents ten to eight, but ten glaring errors on the field permitted the dour Warriors to score in every inning but the first to pare down the preponderant lead run by run till what seemed a walk-away win turned into another discomfiting loss for the Madcaps.

Throughout their uphill struggle the Warriors played a fine brand of aggressive ball, fighting for every run and every out, to emerge with a thoroughly deserving 11-10 win over the too complacent opposition.

"Old Imperturbable" Kelly Silva-Netto for once lost his composure when his team's commanding lead was trimmed down to a scant three runs in the third inning, and was pulled off the mound. Reliever Joey Gracea, unable to hold the turning tide, was charged with the loss.

Warriors centrefielder Johnny Pereira had a profitable day at bat, slugging out three hits while first baseman Ray Alderger, in addition to putting up a sterling performance at the initial station, also contributed to his team's great victory with two solid blows, one of them being the only extra-base hit of the game.

JUNIOR MATCHES

In the Junior division, ace hurler David Vieira led the pace-setting Dodgers further ahead by limiting the Comets to one solitary hit, while the Pandas, coming through magnificently in the clutch innings, topped the Chinese Athletics 7-6.

The free-swinging Americans, depending as usual on their heavy slugging power, blasted the Pandas "B" with a withering barrage of distance-hits to notch up another easy kill.

Pandas pitcher Tony Wu's tentatively slow bloopers had the American outfit swinging off their heels for the first three frames, but in the subsequent innings they adjusted their sights and zoned in on the old apple, blasting it to the distant outer pastures with terrific clouts that almost tore the cover off the ball.

Keystone sacker Warwick hammered out a looping three-bagger, while "Big John" Heismann sailed a fat pitch over the rightfield fence with a dozen feet to spare in the final inning to complete the Pandas disaster.

The badly-bruised Pandas collected only two measly hits off pitcher Harry Cunningham, scoring all their three runs on errors in the fourth. Weakness with the willow also got them a severe 10-0 trouncing at the hands of the Blackhawks last week, when Rennie Barretto mowed down the Panda-boys with consummate ease, conceding them only one single hit.

Perhaps the fault lies with placing too much emphasis on fielding. Tight fielding is fine, but does not produce any runs. Runs are scored only by getting runners on base, and in order to get on base, you have to be able to hit. Perhaps it would be well for the Chinese teams to ponder a little over that old chestnut—"the best defence is offence."

QUITE A FEW AT 17

Seventeen-year-old Peter Head of Ilford, England's fastest boy swimmer, who has competed so successfully in senior events and who represented Britain at the Helsinki Olympic Games, has finished another season of triumphs.

He holds the Essex 440 Yards and 100 Yards Free Style men's titles, the Southern Counties Men's 220 Yards and Ilford Men's 100 Yards and Medley titles, and recently he successfully defended his English Schools 100 Yards Free Style Championship. He attends Leyton County High School and hopes to go to one of the Universities.

Photo shows Peter, who is 6 feet 2 inches in height, polishing up some of his 50 medals and 12 trophies won in swimming competitions. He is wearing his British Olympic blazer.

Football Association's "Beat-The-Tax" Plan Is Failing

Primary reason for the Football extra matches to Wembley, like the Welsh and Belgian games this month, might appear to be to give last season's joint International Champions the status they deserve, and to serve all Continental visitors alike.

I don't think that is the case. In fact, I'll go so far as to say that it was done with the express intention of making up the revenue from all the season's internationals to at least the level reached before the rise in entertainment tax.

How's that working out? Not too well, as far as I can see, for Wembley still have large areas of the higher-priced tickets on general sale for both games.

NO SELL-OUT

It could be that the paying customer thinks twice about fifty bob as opposed to the old top price of two guineas, and twenty-five shillings against a guinea, but whatever the reason, it looks as if the process of recouping money before they've lost it will avail the FA little.

The Welsh match may still be a set-out, but I doubt it. And that will give more talking points to the people who say the internationals should go round. Demand exceeding supply is the best form of ticket-pushing I know, and it might not be so long before the FA are brought around to thinking that a full house, and then some, at say, Villa Park or Wembley, is better than a less-than-capacity attendance at Wembley.

Hockey Results

The following are the results of hockey matches played in the Men's League yesterday: 1st Division—Recreo 8 Police 3; 2nd Division—Aces 0 Dutch H.C. 3; Army "B" 6 Thunderbolts 2; Nav Bharat 2 Bokunpolis 2.

The following are the results of matches played in the Ladies' Hockey League on Saturday: 1st Division—"White" 3 D.G.S. 0; Victoria 4 Dorland "Green" 0; K.O.V. "A" 3 K.O.V. "B" 0; Recreo "A" 4 Recreo "B" 2.

In fact, I've even heard it suggested that the time is coming when it may be necessary to have something akin to a stipendiary magistrate to deal with player's offences, so that there'll be something like uniform action.

Sounds drastic, but with friendships which can obviously be formed through club representatives sitting on committees which deal with such incidents, there are all kinds of varying interpretations.

TIP FOR RANDY

What's the best line of reasoning for those flying the Randolph Turpin pennant as a future dual world champion, after his surprising inability to demolish George Angulo at Haringey?

In my view it would be to forget all about world lightweight honours, even though he's so far ahead of the

The Golfing Dream That Came True

By HENRY LONGHURST

A New Zealand golfer, it appears, recently had a dream in which with great clarity he saw himself holing out in one on his local course.

He mentioned the matter to his wife who, in turn, during the course of the morning's shopping, mentioned it to various of her friends, later destined to be called upon as independent witnesses.

The ideal "pay-off" to this story, rather on the lines of the one about the man who played 12 chess matches simultaneously, blindfolded, and lost them all, would, to my mind, be that our New Zealand friend then went up to his club and at the hole in question put three balls out of bounds and lost the lot. However, it follows the more conventional line — otherwise, suppose, we should never have heard about it—and he did in fact do the hole in one, the stroke itself being identical with the one in his dream.

ONLY INSTANCE

The story is significant in being, so far as I know, the only recorded instance of a golfing dream coming true. Among the various unlikely situations in which we have all at some time imagined ourselves, like "standing for Parliament, or walking Niagara Falls on a tightrope, or being hanged, for the golfer the winning of the Open championship has an assured place in his dreams.

I have myself won the Open on every course on which I have seen it played, with the exception of St. Andrews, where by way of compensation I once did a 67 in the autumn medal.

There comes, however, let us confess it, a clearly defined turning point in the golfer's life—when our dreams turn to nightmares and we see ourselves not winning the Open championship but left with the ball over and then turning the ball over in addressing it—no longer, as it were, scoring three dashing goals to the roar of 100,000 throats, but missing a penalty in the last two minutes of the Cup Final.

IRON SHOTS

For myself, the pin-splitting iron shots with which I used to thrill the crowds round the green at Sandwich, Hoylake, and Lytham have long since turned into what, from my late colleague George Greenwood's immortal phrase "He had only to play the simplest of... but alas..." are now known widely as "bad only" strokes. Indeed, the very thought of playing the final hole in the championship, with four to win, is so disturbing that I can bear to write of it no further.

The most dreamed-of single stroke in golf is undoubtedly that with which the captain of the Royal and Ancient drives himself into office, having known several months beforehand that nothing, barring his own demise, can prevent the dread moment's advance.

The present incumbent, whose stroke from a technical point of view left something to be desired, described it later at the dinner as "A supreme gesture of self denial which has given pleasure to thousands"—including, I may now reveal, the golfing doctor with whom I watched the ceremony, who observed that, while he wished Lord Brabazon no ill, at the same time he had secured odds of 1-1 that he would not get over the road.

Inquiry Told Of Report On A Pilot

London, Nov. 2.

The 28-year-old pilot of a British charter plane which crashed in the Channel did not possess "the mental outlook or sense of responsibility essential to the make-up of an airline pilot."

This was alleged at the first day of a public inquiry in London into the loss of a twin-engined Consul owned by Morton Air Services, Ltd. Five passengers and the pilot, Captain Laurie Page, were drowned after the crash.

The two survivors, Mr. R. H. Bowring, 34, of Woking, Surrey, and Mr. I. D. Chisholm, of Chip-ping Campden, Gloucestershire, attended the hearing. The inquiry, which is being conducted by Commander N.A.J. Cohen, will hear 59 Crown witnesses and probably last a fortnight.

Mr. Stuart Bevan, appearing for the Attorney-General, alleged that Captain Page joined Morton's only 14 days before making "his first and last fatal flight with them."

Since their Consul aircraft carried no wireless operators, he took a two-part examination for an operator's licence five days after joining—but failed. Next day he took the same test with a different examiner and passed.

"There was only one hurdle left," said Mr. Bevan. "He had not flown a Consul recently and had to take a flying test." On June 3 Captain Page was examined by one of Morton's pilots.

The character and stability of the pilot were vital in any assessment of his conduct in the course of the flight, said Mr. Bevan. Alleged character reports on Captain Page by former BEA flight captains spoke of "mental reactions ranging from brilliance to stupidity," "unpredictable and erratic behaviour," and of an "extreme capacity to irritate."

In his four-hour opening summary of the circumstances of the crash, Mr. Bevan stressed that the aircraft had been in no way over-weight. Failure of the starboard engine had been the primary cause.

The inquiry continues.
